HE DID HIS SHARE.

How the Rich Man Changed His Mind When Tuberculosis Struck Him.

Anthony Schofield lived in Missouri and had made his money in copper and zinc. He had worked hard from a boy in the drift up to the rank of foreman, then to superintendent and finally to owner. Sickness never worried him. His six foot giant frame had stood many hard knocks and was good for many more. A year ago in answer to a pretty girl who asked him to buy some seals to help the miners who had tuberculosis he replied gruffly: "Let 'em work and save. That's what I did when I was young, and I've never been sick and have got enough to keep me now."

It was a different Schofield who approached the Red Cross Seal girl at one of the booths yesterday. In twelve months his daughter had been stolen away by the monster Tuberculosis and his son, just graduating from college, had been compelled to drop everything else in his search for health from this same disease. The doctor had said that the disease could be traced back probably to childhood, when his two children had been nursed by the consumptive daughter of a consumptive miner. The rickety, disease breeding tenements in which the miner was compelled to live were owned by Schofield now. "I'd give my two eyes and both legs and arms to have my daughter with me and my son restored to health," he confided to the Red Cross Seal girl. "I can't get away from the thought that my girl might be alive and my boy well if I'd given some attention to the prevention of this disease ten or fifteen years ago. Now it's too late for that, but I'll keep somebody else's son and daughter safe. Here, give me all the seals you've got and then go and get all you can find and charge them all to me. If money can make amends, which it can't, I'll do my share."

As the astonished girl handed over to him her entire supply of 20,000 seals and took his check in return she heard him mutter his daughter's name and repeat, "I'll do my share."

MASONS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICES

ARCHDEACON HAZLETT OCCUPIES THE PULPIT AT ST. MARK'S CHURCH

The Rev. Dr. Hazlett, archdeacon of the diocese of Nevada, occupied the pulpit yesterday morning at St. Mark's Episcopal church, which was prettily and tastefully decorated in honor of the Christmas season.

The text of his discourse was: "What shall I do with this Jesus, called Christ?" The sermon was replete with apt and practical illustrations of the birth of Christ. The Dr. said in part as follows:

"The question just mentioned was propounded by Pilate. It has reached down the ages of time from that day until the present." The speaker then briefly referred to the historic vision of St. John, and continuing in the line of his discourse stated: "A visionless man is never a great or even good man. Our conception of heaven is a place of abounding joy, a reunion of hearts amongst the mansions of the skies, and where the thunder of voices are heard crying: 'Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty; heaven and earth are full of thy glory.' I do not believe Pilate realized the true significance of the question when he asked 'What shall I do with this Jesus called Christ?' But heaven did. A simple but effective argument was then introduced dealing with the changing of the order of nature to enable Christ to become man, and thus carry out the plan designed by the Father.

He then added: "The giving of gifts at this season is symbolical of the gift to Christ to mankind. Jesus Christ is abroad in the world. In a measure people love Christ, but they fail to understand Him. Men revere Him, honor Him, and in some respects try to imitate him, and the world is more and more learning to appreciate and understand Him. Will you accept Him as the world's teacher and let Him dwell within your hearts, today and forever?"

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. George Creswell received the rite of baptism, and the service concluded by the administering of holy communion. The Masonic order attended in a body at the evening service.

Harvest Time in Shantung.

Now, come and see a harvest in Shantung. Here, too, it is the time of supreme interest to the whole family. Life in the country is practically measured by so many wheat harvests, and every old man and woman hopes to live to see one more. For weeks before all plans are made with reference to it. Carpenters, masons, work of every kind must either be finished before "pulling wheat time" or laid aside at that time to wait until the harvest is over. No matter how important in the eyes of a foreign resident the work in hand may become, he cannot beg or buy his workmen to continue when once the wheat is ripe. In the hospitals all the patients want to get well by wheat pulling time. Some must stay on, but many a one incapacitated in hand or foot for real work goes home to take his or her place in "watching the gate," that all the rest of the family may go to the field and thrashing floors.—Christian Herald.

The Irish of the Balkans.

The Servians are the Irish of southeastern Europe, with all the virtues and some of the weaknesses of the Irish people. They are especially proud of their national poetry, which they possess as no other nation possesses in modern times, for they still have their national bards—men who live by making national song, not highly cultured poets, but men in the street. They do not go to a newspaper to report what they hear, but to the next inn or coffee house, and there take up their instruments to recite what they have to say. Virtually our bards are ancient reporters. The old ones sing. Those of the present day stenograph. The Servian language is the richest and most musical of the Slav dialects. The Russian language has that reputation, but it is not so musical and clear and rich.—Miyatovitch, Servian minister to England, in the Manchester Guardian.

A Bright Prospect.

"For five years," said the commercial traveler, "I had called upon a certain draper in Scotland and never got an order. I mentioned it to the head of the firm. 'We have dealt with B. & Co.,' he said. 'Their traveler called for twenty years before he took an order, and if you'll continue to call for twenty years I'll no say but you may get one.'"

Firedamp.
Firedamp is the ordinary name for the carbureted hydrogen which issues from "blowers" or fissures in coal seams. It is inflammable and when mixed with air in certain proportions is highly explosive. Its ignition is attended by the danger of an attendant explosion of coal dust.

WHARTON ANDERSON WEDS MISS PATTERSON

POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE OF TONOPAH ARE MARRIED CHRISTMAS NIGHT

The pretty home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. McCabe, of this city, was the scene on Christmas night, at 8:45, of a simple wedding, on which occasion Mr. Wharton Anderson of Tonopah, and Miss Grace Patterson of Salem, Oregon, were united in marriage. Rev. Ralph W. Bayless of the Presbyterian church officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. McCabe and Ewing Folsom of Goldfield, and Alfred Boyle were witnesses to the marriage, and there were also present Mr. McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. John Brant and Mr. John Hobe. Light refreshments were served and the happy bride and groom were the recipients of every good wish for the future. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will reside at their home on Idaho street.

Mr. Anderson is employed in the assaying department of the Extension Mining company, and his wife for a considerable time has been engaged in the capacity of teacher in one of the public schools at Salem.

The groom is a native of the south, but has for many years made his home in California and Nevada. He is a prominent fraternity man, being connected with the Masonic order, and also Mizpah lodge, Knights of Pythias, of Tonopah. "Wharton," as he is popularly called, has a host of friends here and elsewhere, and it is needless to say they will be a unit in extending to the happy young couple their warmest and warmest congratulations for a joyous and prosperous life during their married career.

TONOPAH PIONEERS TO ENJOY BANQUET

OLD TIMERS WILL MEET AROUND THE SQUARE CAN OF MULLIGAN STEW

December 25, 1900, was Tonopah's first Christmas and of the little band that enjoyed their Christmas cheer in the camp, but a few still remain in the district. So far as learned they are Bob Stewart, R. B. Davis, W. E. Marsh and John Nay.

It was planned on this Christmas that the pioneers of 1901 would serve the pioneers of 1900 with a real camp dinner, a belated Christmas repast, within the next two weeks.

As now arranged, the banquet will take the form of a mulligan stew and will be cooked in a square can on a tent stove. The setting will be as much as possible like that of Christmas, 1900. The mere fact that Mrs. John Nay has agreed to prepare the mulligan is ample evidence that it will be delicious.

An Unkind Retort.

"You made a fool of me!" exclaimed the angry husband.

"Call yourself a fool if you wish, my dear," calmly rejoined his tantalizingly placid wife, "but remember that you have always claimed to be a self made man."

Honest, Anyhow.

"So you are marrying the man of your choice?"

"Not exactly the man of my choice; rather the man I could get."—Detroit Free Press.

JAMES NESBITT AND MISS BRADSHAW WED

WELL KNOWN AND POPULAR YOUNG PEOPLE BUILD THEIR LIFE NEST

A quiet home wedding was performed at 9 o'clock Friday night at the Rotholz residence in Tonopah, which was recently purchased by the groom, James Nesbitt. His bride was Miss Lavelle P. Bradshaw. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Ralph W. Bayless, pastor of the Presbyterian church. The only witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Nesbitt and Mr. and Mrs. G. Edgar Nesbitt of Goldfield, relatives of the groom.

At the conclusion of the ceremony, the little wedding party sat down to a "homey" little wedding dinner, but there came a ring at the door and in trooped Mr. Nesbitt's coworkers of the T. & G. market, bringing with them a handsome silver set, which was presented to the bride, a speech of felicitation being neatly made by C. D. Ziegler.

The groom is a graduate of the Nevada state university. He was a member of the sigma alpha fraternity. He is also a member of the Masonic lodge and the B. P. O. E. For the past four years he has served the Tonopah & Goldfield market as bookkeeper and cashier. The bride for the past ten months has been nurse in charge of the Tonopah Mine operators' hospital. She is a graduate of the Samuel Merritt hospital at Oakland.

CONVICTION FOUND IN FORVILLY CASE

The trial of Frank Forvilly and Floa Lusuretta on a charge of unlawful cohabitation, a gross misdemeanor under the statute, came to a close Wednesday afternoon and the jury, after being out about six hours returned a verdict of guilty.

At 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, after a motion for a new trial had been denied, Judge McFadden sentenced the defendants to six months each in the county jail. This was the minimum jail sentence under the statute, although an alternative fine of $500 might have been imposed. An application for the admission of the defendants to bail pending the hearing of an appeal was denied.

This was the last case on the criminal calendar, the term having begun on November 16. Five cases in all were tried, with the result that there were three convictions and two acquittals.—Humboldt Star.

AMUSEMENTS

BUTLER THEATER

Another interesting program will be seen at the Butler tonight, composed of a Pathe Weekly, with all the current events and scenes of interest from all over the world, and a Great Northern production, featuring Betty Nansen, the royal actress who speaks with her eyes and sheds real tears when the occasion requires; the name of the picture is "A Woman of Impulse," a vivacious emotional play, being a story of intrigue, romance and suspense, giving to Miss Nansen the role of the fascinating heart breaker. It is the old story of the high-strung wife who does not live happily with her dissipated husband, so spends much of her time with a friend. The husband followed her and her friend to the race course one day, where he creates a scene and she gets a divorce. She marries her friend, Johnson, who soon tires of her and they quarrel and separate. Now weary, she telegraphs her first husband for permission to return home, but he answers that she is an exile forever. She then accepts a position as secret agent for the government and thrilling situations come back thick and fast, and is sure to hold an audience closely interested from the start to the finish of the story. Miss Nansen being given an excellent opportunity to display her rare talent as one of the most emotional stars now before the public.

Tomorrow, Paramount travel pictures and "Stolen Goods," featuring Blanche Sweet, Theodore Roberts and House Peters in a Lasky production, written by Margaret Turnbull.
